SCA Name (no titles):	Antonio Giordano da Sicilia
------------------------------	-----------------------------

Class Name:	Christine de Pizan: a survey of her life and writings.
Class Description:	Christine de Pizan (1365-1430 A.D.) was Europe's first woman known to have earned her living by the pen. Christine de Pizan was able to become successful in a time when women had no legal rights and were considered their father's or husband's property. Her life was a product of the fortunes and misfortunes she endured. At the age of twenty-five, Christine's husband died leaving her to support her three children, a niece and her mother. She turned to writing to make her living and as such, she is also considered Europe's first professional writer. Prompted by necessity, Christine wrote incessantly and she gained a reputation as a prolific and diverse author, producing works on a wide range of subjects and genres. We will survey her life and a number of her major works.
